

PURCHASE AND INFORMATION QUESTIONNAIRE FOR FOREIGN CLIENTS

Why this questionnaire?

The law and case law imposes on the seller of a property an obligation to respect the principle of transparency and to provide certain information and guarantees to the buyer of their property.

This questionnaire will enable us to foresee potential difficulties that might arise in order to ensure that your purchase goes smoothly, and to optimally advise you by drawing your attention to an aspect of your transaction, thereby ensuring that you are better protected.

TAXATION AND PROBLEMS RELATING TO AN INTERNATIONAL SITUATION

Purchasing a property in France while resident for tax purposes in another country or domiciled in another State may have civil and tax consequences, both during the period of ownership of the property, and at the time of its resale or the settlement of your estate.

Certain situations must be planned for, and we will discuss the various issues with you.

In particular, issues that may need to be discussed are:

- The taxation of rental income deriving from the property,
- Placing the property at the disposal of a shareholder in the case of ownership via a company,
- The annual 3% tax on the market value of properties and property rights owned in France,
- Taxation of the capital gain realised at the time of resale,
- Estate planning linked to the international situation (in particular the choice of governing law applicable to the settlement of the estate)

Please inform us here where applicable of any information relating to the preceding section that you think is relevant and that we should be aware of, with a view to our analysing it. We will inform you of any points that we consider should be the subject of particular vigilance.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION AND SPECIFICITIES

In this section please let us know of any other information that you think it would be of utility to inform the firm of notaries of, in order to ensure that your purchase goes smoothly and is optimally managed:

Article 1112-1 of the Civil Code: "If one of the parties is aware of information whose importance makes it a determining factor for the consent of the other party they must inform them of it if, legitimately, the latter is unaware of this information or trusts the other party they are contracting with. Nonetheless, this duty to provide information does not concern estimation of the value of the service. Information that is of determining importance is information which has a direct and necessary link to the content of the contract or the capacity of the parties. It is incumbent on the party that claims that they should have been informed of an item of information to prove that the other party was under an obligation to inform them of it, it being the responsibility of this other party to prove that it provided it. The parties cannot either limit or exclude this duty. In addition to the liability of the party that was under an obligation to provide the information, failure to fulfil this duty to provide information may lead to cancellation of the contract under the conditions provided for in Articles 1130 et seq."
